TSCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (II known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Built in the form of an eighteenth-century mansion, the Old Hotel is a two-story rectangular structure with a facade of five-bays. The front wall is laid in all-header bond with rusticated stone quoins at the corners and a fine rusticated stone doorway. The window openings are spanned by flat stone arches with superimposed keystones. The basement wall is of random ashlar below a molded stone water table. The house is crowned by a fully molded wood cornice with modillions and hipped roof. Also featured on the house are four interior end chimneys. The original appearance of the house has been altered by the addition of later porches and by the loss of the original sash.

Unfortunately, the interior of the house has been extensively altered. Of the original interior fabric only the mantel in the northwest room on the main floor, as well as some cornicing and doors, are original. Also, the original floor plan has been greatly changed.
